Qualify for Black Belt Online

If you’ve already reviewed program information on our website and you’re ready to see if you meet our Black Belt entry requirements, please read on or go back to the “Pre-requisites” section.

Black Belt training builds heavily on Green Belt training as well as experience leading a project at the Green Belt level. Therefore, to qualify for our Black Belt program requires, at a minimum, that you have been certified as a Green Belt by us (CQAS) or by another reputable provider, and certification must have included the completion of at least one Green Belt level project. This will ensure that you have the necessary preparation for our Black Belt program.

- If you have not completed a Green Belt certification program, please register for our Lean Six Sigma Green Belt program. This program is offered on-campus so if you don’t live in the Rochester area, please contact us at cqas@rit.edu to discuss other options.
- If you have completed CQAS’s Lean Six Sigma Green Belt program and achieved certification with a completed project, please email us at cqas@rit.edu with the approximate date of certification and we will forward you a link to the registration page for our online Black Belt program.
- If you have completed a Green Belt certification program (with project) from another provider, please forward the following information to cqas@rit.edu:
  - Certificate or other evidence of completion (copy)
  - Green Belt curriculum (copy)
  - Provider name, delivery method (classroom, online, etc.), and dates of training
  - Lean Six Sigma Project information: charter, tools used, solution and benefits achieved, sponsor approval and title, sponsor contact information.

Please contact cqas@rit.edu with any questions about providing this information.

We will review this information to ensure that you have the background to be successful in our Black Belt program. Once you have been approved for the program, we will forward a link to our registration system.

Please email questions to cqas@rit.edu.

Thank you!