An announcement from Provost Jeremy Haefner...

As you may be aware, many faculty and staff at RIT are deeply engaged with Rochester area K-12 educators. Working collaboratively with teachers and administrators from across the Rochester region, RIT offers programs at the elementary, middle school and high school levels to keep students in school and thinking about college, particularly at RIT! Today, I am very happy to announce the new website for the RIT K-12 office at http://www.rit.edu/academicaffairs/k12/index.php.

This website provides a comprehensive overview that will better promote RIT’s K-12 activities. It will centralize program information and track related RIT K-12 metrics. Certain STEM initiatives will also be administered through this site. These grant-funded initiatives connect classroom instruction and real life experiences and provide important opportunities for students in local school districts to gain awareness and understanding of technology and its impact on career choices in the 21st Century.

Other resources available on this one-stop shop for K-12 information are professional development opportunities for educators, volunteer opportunities, news and events, K-12 related research and community connections.

I am pleased to unveil this new website to you and encourage you to take a fresh look at what is happening in the Office of K-12 Programs.
