Begin Labor Day Weekend learning about garden work at RIT, and some workers of a different kind.

The Environmental Wellness Team in Student Affairs presents:
Wellness Walks: Berries, Bulbs and Bees, Oh My!
Friday, September 2nd
12:10pm-12:50pm
RIT Community Garden
Open to all RIT Community Members.

Do you know about RIT’s Community Garden? How about the bee hives next door? Would you like to learn more about both? Join Engineers for a Sustainable World, the RIT Beekeepers Club, and the Coordinator of the Community Garden as they provide an on-site overview of the Community Garden, the Greenhouse project, and the newly added Beehives.

Sign language interpreters are available by request made before noon on Thursday here: https://myaccess.rit.edu/2/. Participants should meet at the painted rock just off the quarter mile between the Health Center and Interfaith Center. The walk will begin promptly at 12:10pm. No pre-registration is required; just bring your RIT ID.

This is the first in this semester’s series of Wellness Walks, which consist of short, guided walking-tours that highlight unique and/or environmentally-significant areas of the RIT campus. For more information about Wellness Walks, or if you or someone you know might be a good candidate to guide a wellness walk by way of providing a guided tour of a unique space at RIT, you can find more information here: https://www.rit.edu/studentaffairs/wellness/events.

The Environmental Wellness Team is a committee in Student Affairs whose goals are to facilitate, promote, and deliver information, programs, and opportunities that help members of the RIT community understand, appreciate, and observe principles and issues related to our environment and sustainable practices.
