

Health Sciences & Technology Students

4 Reasons Health Sciences students should study abroad

Gain insight into global health issues and how they're approached and solved throughout the world.

Broaden your perspective on health and wellness by critically examining healthcare systems in other countries, and learn how diversity and cultural influences impact healthcare solutions.

Develop intercultural communication skills that will make you stand out when applying for jobs, graduate schools, and research programs.

Learn how to relate to a diverse population of people - a skill that is in high demand from employers in healthcare fields.

Highlighted Programs

DIS - Study Abroad in Scandinavia

Copenhagen, Denmark
Fall, Spring, Summer

Denmark is known globally for innovative thinking and high quality medical research and is home to the Medicon Valley, a comprehensive life science cluster that attracts many successful companies to the region. In addition to classroom based learning and research, students on DIS programs also participate in site visits and meet with experts in the field through program study tours.

Coursework available in: Biomedicine, Medical Practice & Policy, Neuroscience, Public Health

No language requirements. Courses taught in English.

Summer Psychology in Croatia

Zagreb, Croatia
Summer

Earn 6 credits towards an immersion in Psychology while studying for 5 weeks in Central Europe. Gain an understanding of the cultural influences of modern psychology while studying and living in Croatia's capital city of Zagreb and participate in a week-long study tour to Vienna, Austria and Krakow, Poland to visit important sites related to psychology history.

No language requirements. Courses taught in English.

Nutrition & The Mediterranean Diet | RIT Faculty-Led Program

When You Should Go

Work closely with your academic advisor to determine the timing that will work best for your program of study.

Things to Know

Consider taking immersion, free electives or general education courses abroad for more flexibility in program options.

A shorter summer program may be a good option to fit in an international experience for Health Sciences majors.

RIT Education Abroad Travel Grants ($500-$1,000) available for global campus, faculty-led or exchange programs.

Financial aid and many more scholarships available! Ask a study abroad advisor for more details.
