The Freshman Experience: Biz 1+2

The Freshman Experience: Biz 1+2 sets the undergraduate business program at Saunders apart from others. All students participate as freshmen together as a cohort for two semesters, while at most other business schools students do not start taking business classes until their second or third year.

Embark on your business education on day one, laying the foundation early for a successful career. You are provided an introduction to all the functional areas of a business as you pitch new business commercialization plans to a panel of alumni and judges.

Education Abroad

FAQs

Advanced Placement (AP) and International Baccalaureate (IB) Credit

RIT accepts AP and IB credit earned in high school depending on the score attained on the AP or IB exam. Students are asked to contact the testing organizations directly and send scores to the RIT Office of Undergraduate Admissions.

+1 MBA Pathway

Outstanding undergraduate applicants may qualify to follow an accelerated +1 MBA Early Acceptance Pathway to get their MBA in one extra year. They are offered conditional early acceptance into the +1 MBA program upon their acceptance into RIT. This reduces the time to an advanced degree by one year, reduces total tuition expense, provides a guaranteed minimum graduate scholarship, and delivers wage premiums between 10% to 33% upon graduation. Enrolled students may become eligible for the +1 MBA after 1-year of study.

Double Major vs. Dual Degree

Students must wait until after their first semester to apply for a double major or dual degree.

Double Major - a program of study that meets the requirements of two distinct majors in a single Bachelor's degree type. Students receive a single diploma.

Dual Degree - a program of study in which two distinct degree types are pursued simultaneously. Students receive two diplomas, one for each degree granted.

General Education

RIT's framework for general education provides students with courses that meet specific university approved learning outcomes and New York State Education Department liberal arts and sciences requirements. Learn more about our general education curriculum online:

Honors Program

The top 5-8 percent of the freshman applicants are invited to join the Honors Program as first-year students. Applicants who were not initially invited to the Honors Program may be invited to apply during their first two years.

Immersion vs. Minor

Students pursuing a bachelor's degree have the option of completing minors and immersions from across all nine RIT colleges. This is an impactful way for students to develop another area of professional expertise, or enable them to pursue an area of personal interest.

Immersion - As part of their requirements, bachelor's degree students must complete an immersion—a concentration of three courses in a particular area. These courses support deeper learning within a focus area and are used to meet RIT's general education requirements. In many cases, an immersion can lead to a minor with the addition of two courses. However, not all minors have a corresponding immersion and vice versa.

Minor - a collection of 5 or more courses in an area of study and is not required for graduation.

Study Abroad

Become more competitive in today's multicultural, global business environment and experience first-hand how the world is interconnected through business. Business students with study abroad experience are more likely to be hired over those who have not studied abroad, and they earn an average of 25% more and are more likely to be promoted than their peers. Plus 90% of study abroad alumni who applied got into their first or second choice graduate school. RIT also hosts students at its global campuses, located in China, Croatia, Dubai, and Kosovo.

Transfer Credit

A transfer credit evaluation, when applicable, is completed as part of the enrollment process for incoming students. Credit may be granted for coursework provided it is from an accredited college or university. A grade of "C" or better is required for transfer credit to be awarded; advisors will apply transfer credits accordingly as they relate to your intended program.
