

David F. Piantanida

U.S. Environmental Protection Agency

David is 1989 graduate of Rochester Institute of Technology (RIT) where he received his M.S. in Organization and Human Resource Development from the College of Continuing Education. He is also a 1988 graduate of Le Moyne College (Syracuse, NY) with a B.S. in Business Administration and a concentration in Marketing.

David joined the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) in February 1990 and now serves in an environmental policy role in EPA's Enforcement and Compliance Assurance Division, Region 8 Office located in Denver, Colorado.

With almost three decades of federal experience, David has worked throughout the agency including congressional and intergovernmental relations, environmental policy analysis, public affairs, strategic communications and planning, crisis communication, environmental and research education, human resource management, organizational development, and grants/contracts management. He is a trusted advisor, experienced collaborator and skilled liaison.

Recently, David has worked on environmental policy and research issues in the field including the Gold King Mine spill incident in Durango, Colorado and he has worked on hydraulic fracturing issues with congressional committees, members of congress, other federal agencies, local government agencies, states, local communities, tribes, and the oil and gas industry. He now works with the western states of CO, MT, ND, SD, UT, and WY on state environmental policy and oversight issues.

David lives in Greenwood Village, CO with his wife, Lisa, and their three children, Bodie, Gates, and Marin.

