My Journey Where It Took Me Jump Starting My Career

SOIS School of Individualized Study

James Gorayeb

I've been through so much since attending RIT. During my time at RIT I changed my major three times, became a father, and finally found a curriculum and career that I am excited to be a part of. This is what my capstone is about—showcasing my journey and commitment to my future.

In my first two years of RIT, I was lost. I wasn't enjoying what I was studying and I had no clue what I wanted to do as a career. I took a chance and contacted Marty Burris, the director of the University Exploration program and everything changed. My path led me to SOIS where with the help of Melissa Piciulo I discovered and honed my creative interests. My concentrations are Design and Design in Technology and I'm proud to show the results of my education. While I had found my subjects and education of choice I had yet to find my career. Throughout my life, my family has shown me examples of creativity in the real estate industry. They've bought, renovated, and sold properties which showed me the real estate industry can be a creative career to pursue.
