

ROAR & SOAR

RIT | College of Liberal Arts

“Learning by Doing” 101

Successful students know that "learning by doing" is part of what makes an RIT education stand out. Start today by learning about all the ways you can get hands-on experience.

3 Ways to ROAR this Week:

- Learn about what counts as experiential learning (a.k.a. "learning by doing"). Research, internships, co-ops, and study abroad are just a few examples of the powerful experiential learning opportunities that you can pursue at RIT. Immersed in a work setting, research project, or a different culture, you'll push yourself and grow in ways that might surprise you!
- Check what qualifies and what's required for your major. There's more than one way to meet a co-op requirement. Options like research and study abroad might qualify. Even if co-op isn't required, adding experiential learning to your resume can help you stand out in future job searches. Check out what's available in your major.
- Meet your Career Services Coordinator Eric Dixon. You can get one-on-one support with co-op and job searches from your College of Liberal Arts (COLA) Career Services Coordinator Eric Dixon. Eric hosts open office hours for COLA students weekly on Thursdays, 11:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m., at the COLA Student Lounge (Liberal Arts Hall, second floor). Drop in for on-the-spot advice and answers to your career related questions, or schedule a time to meet.

Find out what qualifies and what's required for your major

Calendar Spotlights

THURSDAYS, 11:30 a.m.–12:30 p.m.
COLA Student Lounge, Liberal Arts Hall, second floor
Career Advice for COLA Students, Drop-In Sessions

FRIDAY, NOV. 7
Last Day to Withdraw