

Sucker or Lollipop?

What shapes your perceptions?

People have a unique perspective on things based on their perceptions and experiences

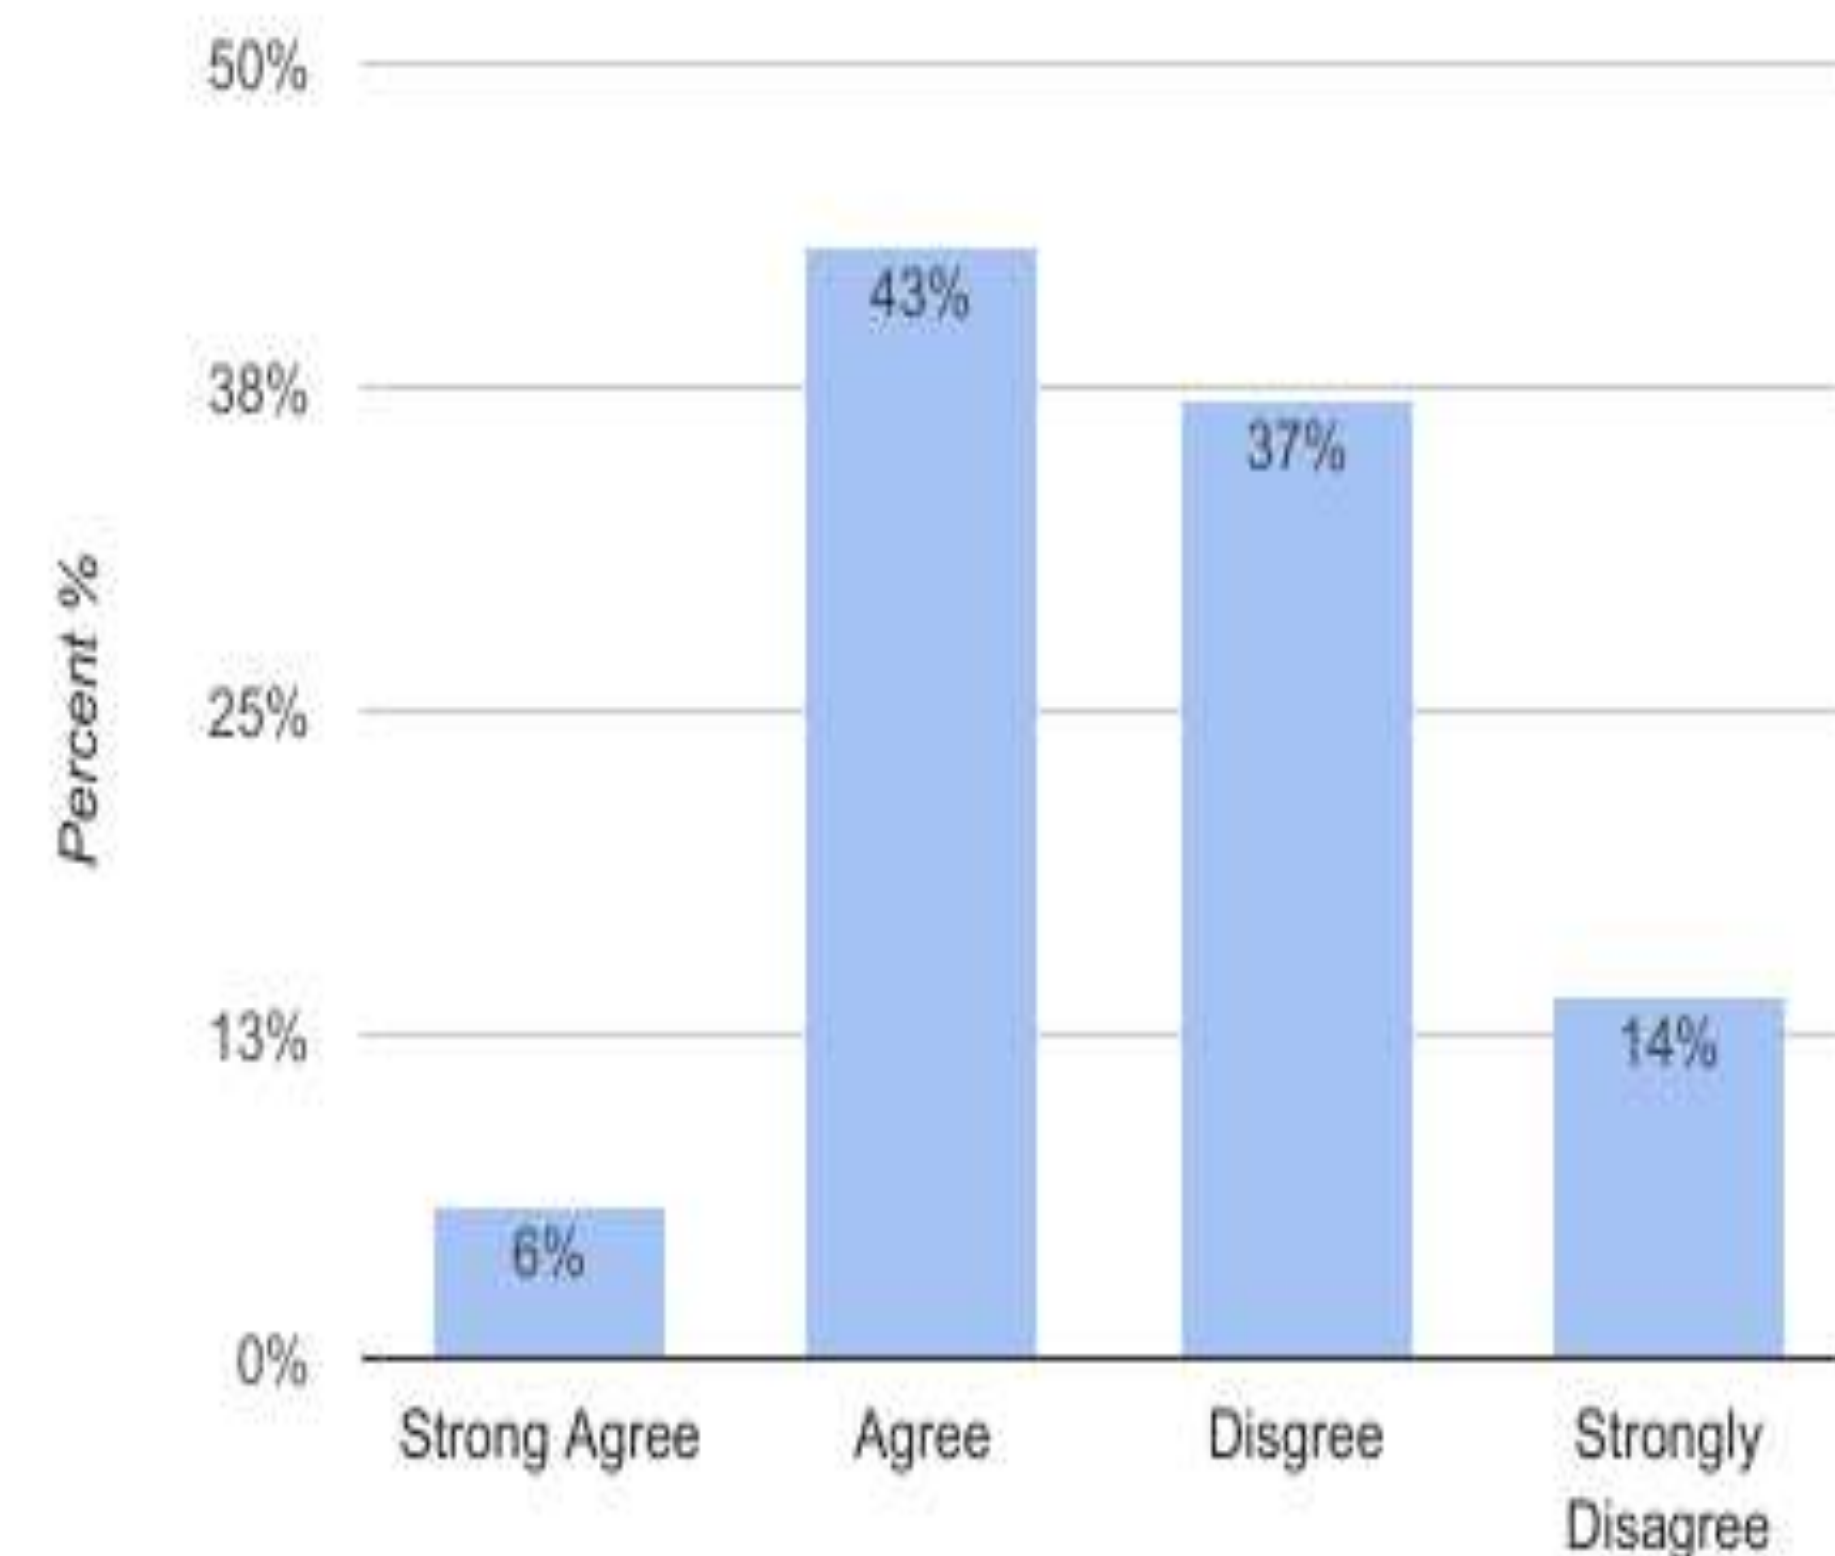

Project Goals

The Community Views of Criminal Justice Project seeks to accurately capture what factor into various local groups' perceptions of policing and the criminal justice system.

Group Type	Description
Neighborhood	Neighborhood and business associations, community organizing groups
Youth	Young people and staff at organizations
Reentry	People in reentry and staff at organizations
Community	Reform-oriented/activist groups and participants in low-income programs
Police-citizen	Police-Citizen Interaction Committee (PCIC), Police And Citizens Together Against Crime (PAC-TAC), Neighborhood Watch

Fairness in Policing

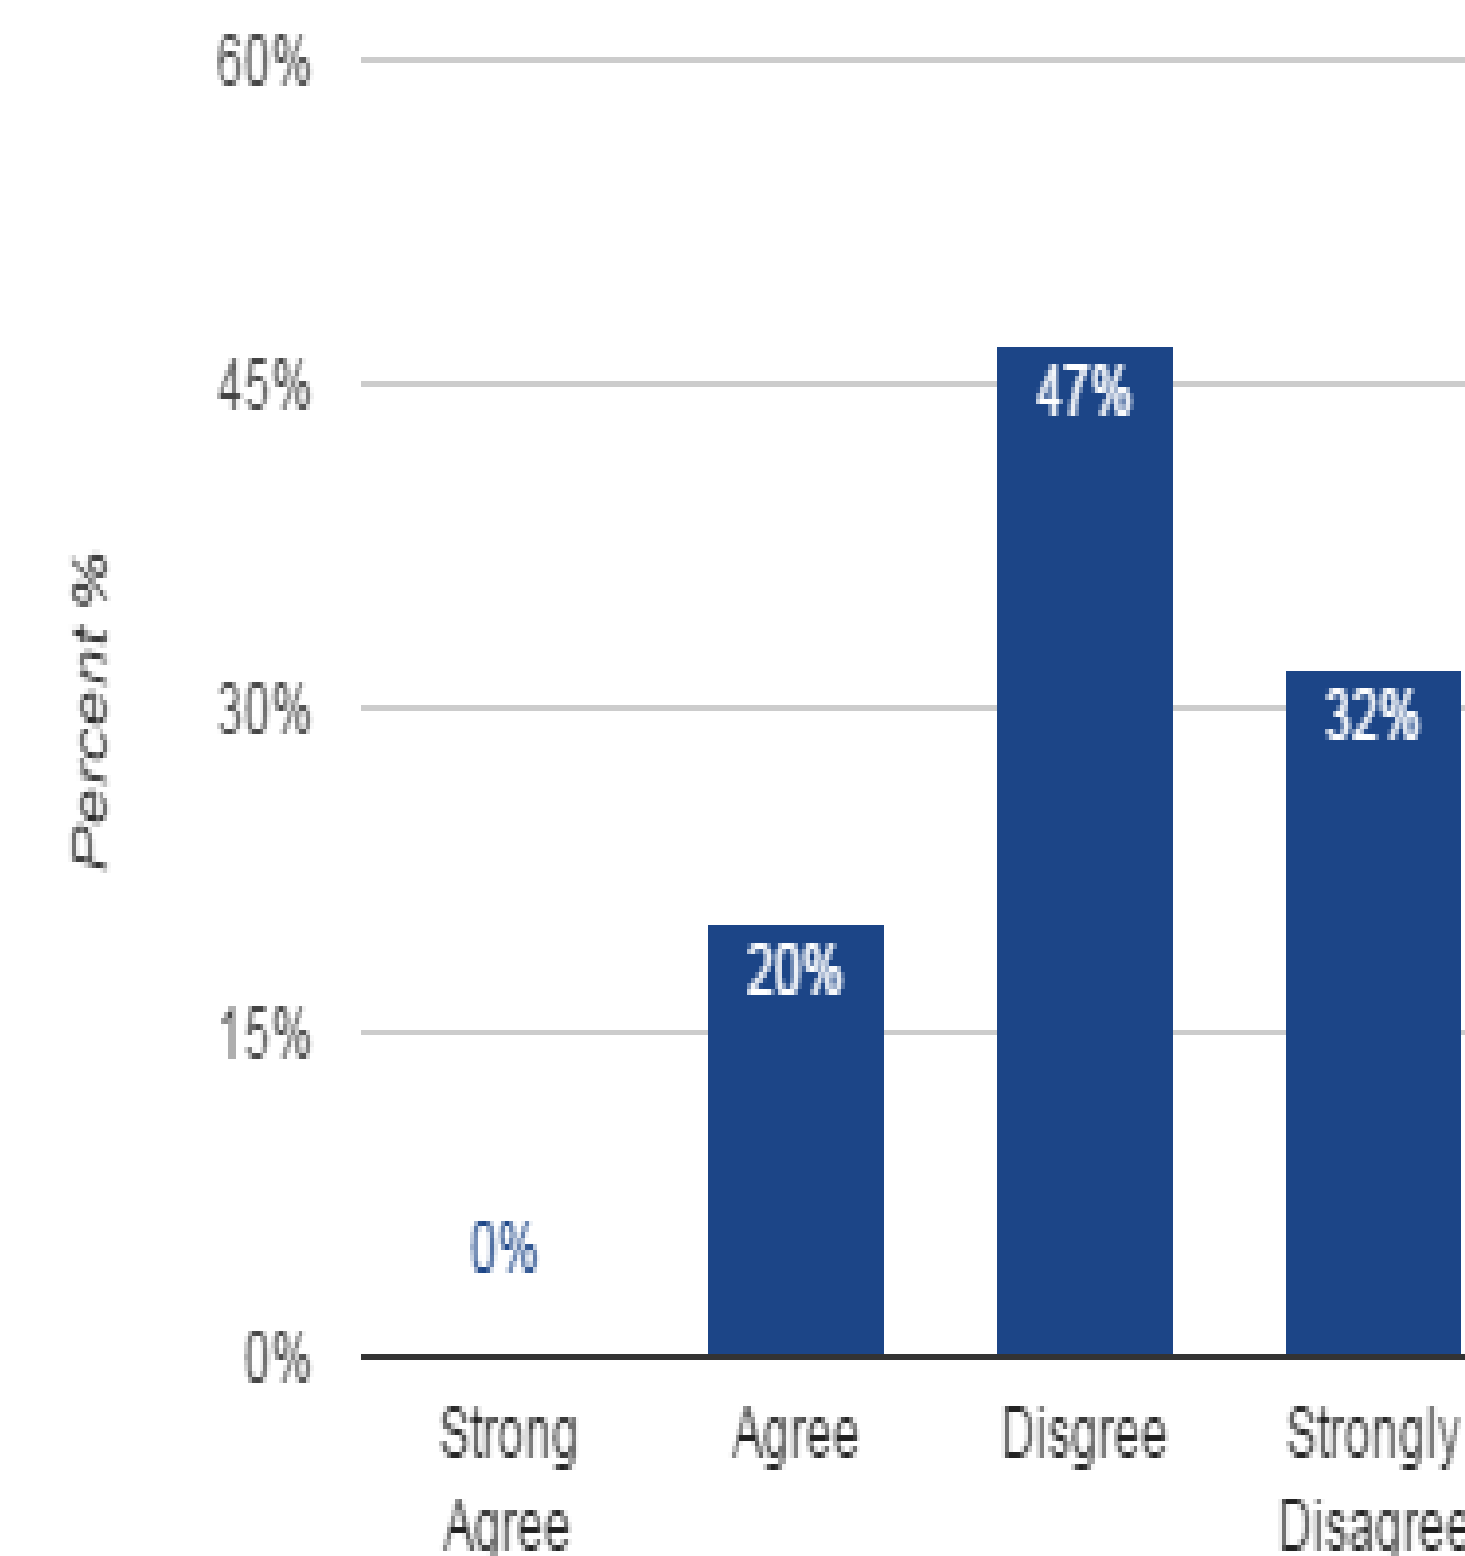

The Police in my community are generally fair in the way they enforce the law? (n= 110)

This chart lists views by individual participant surveys

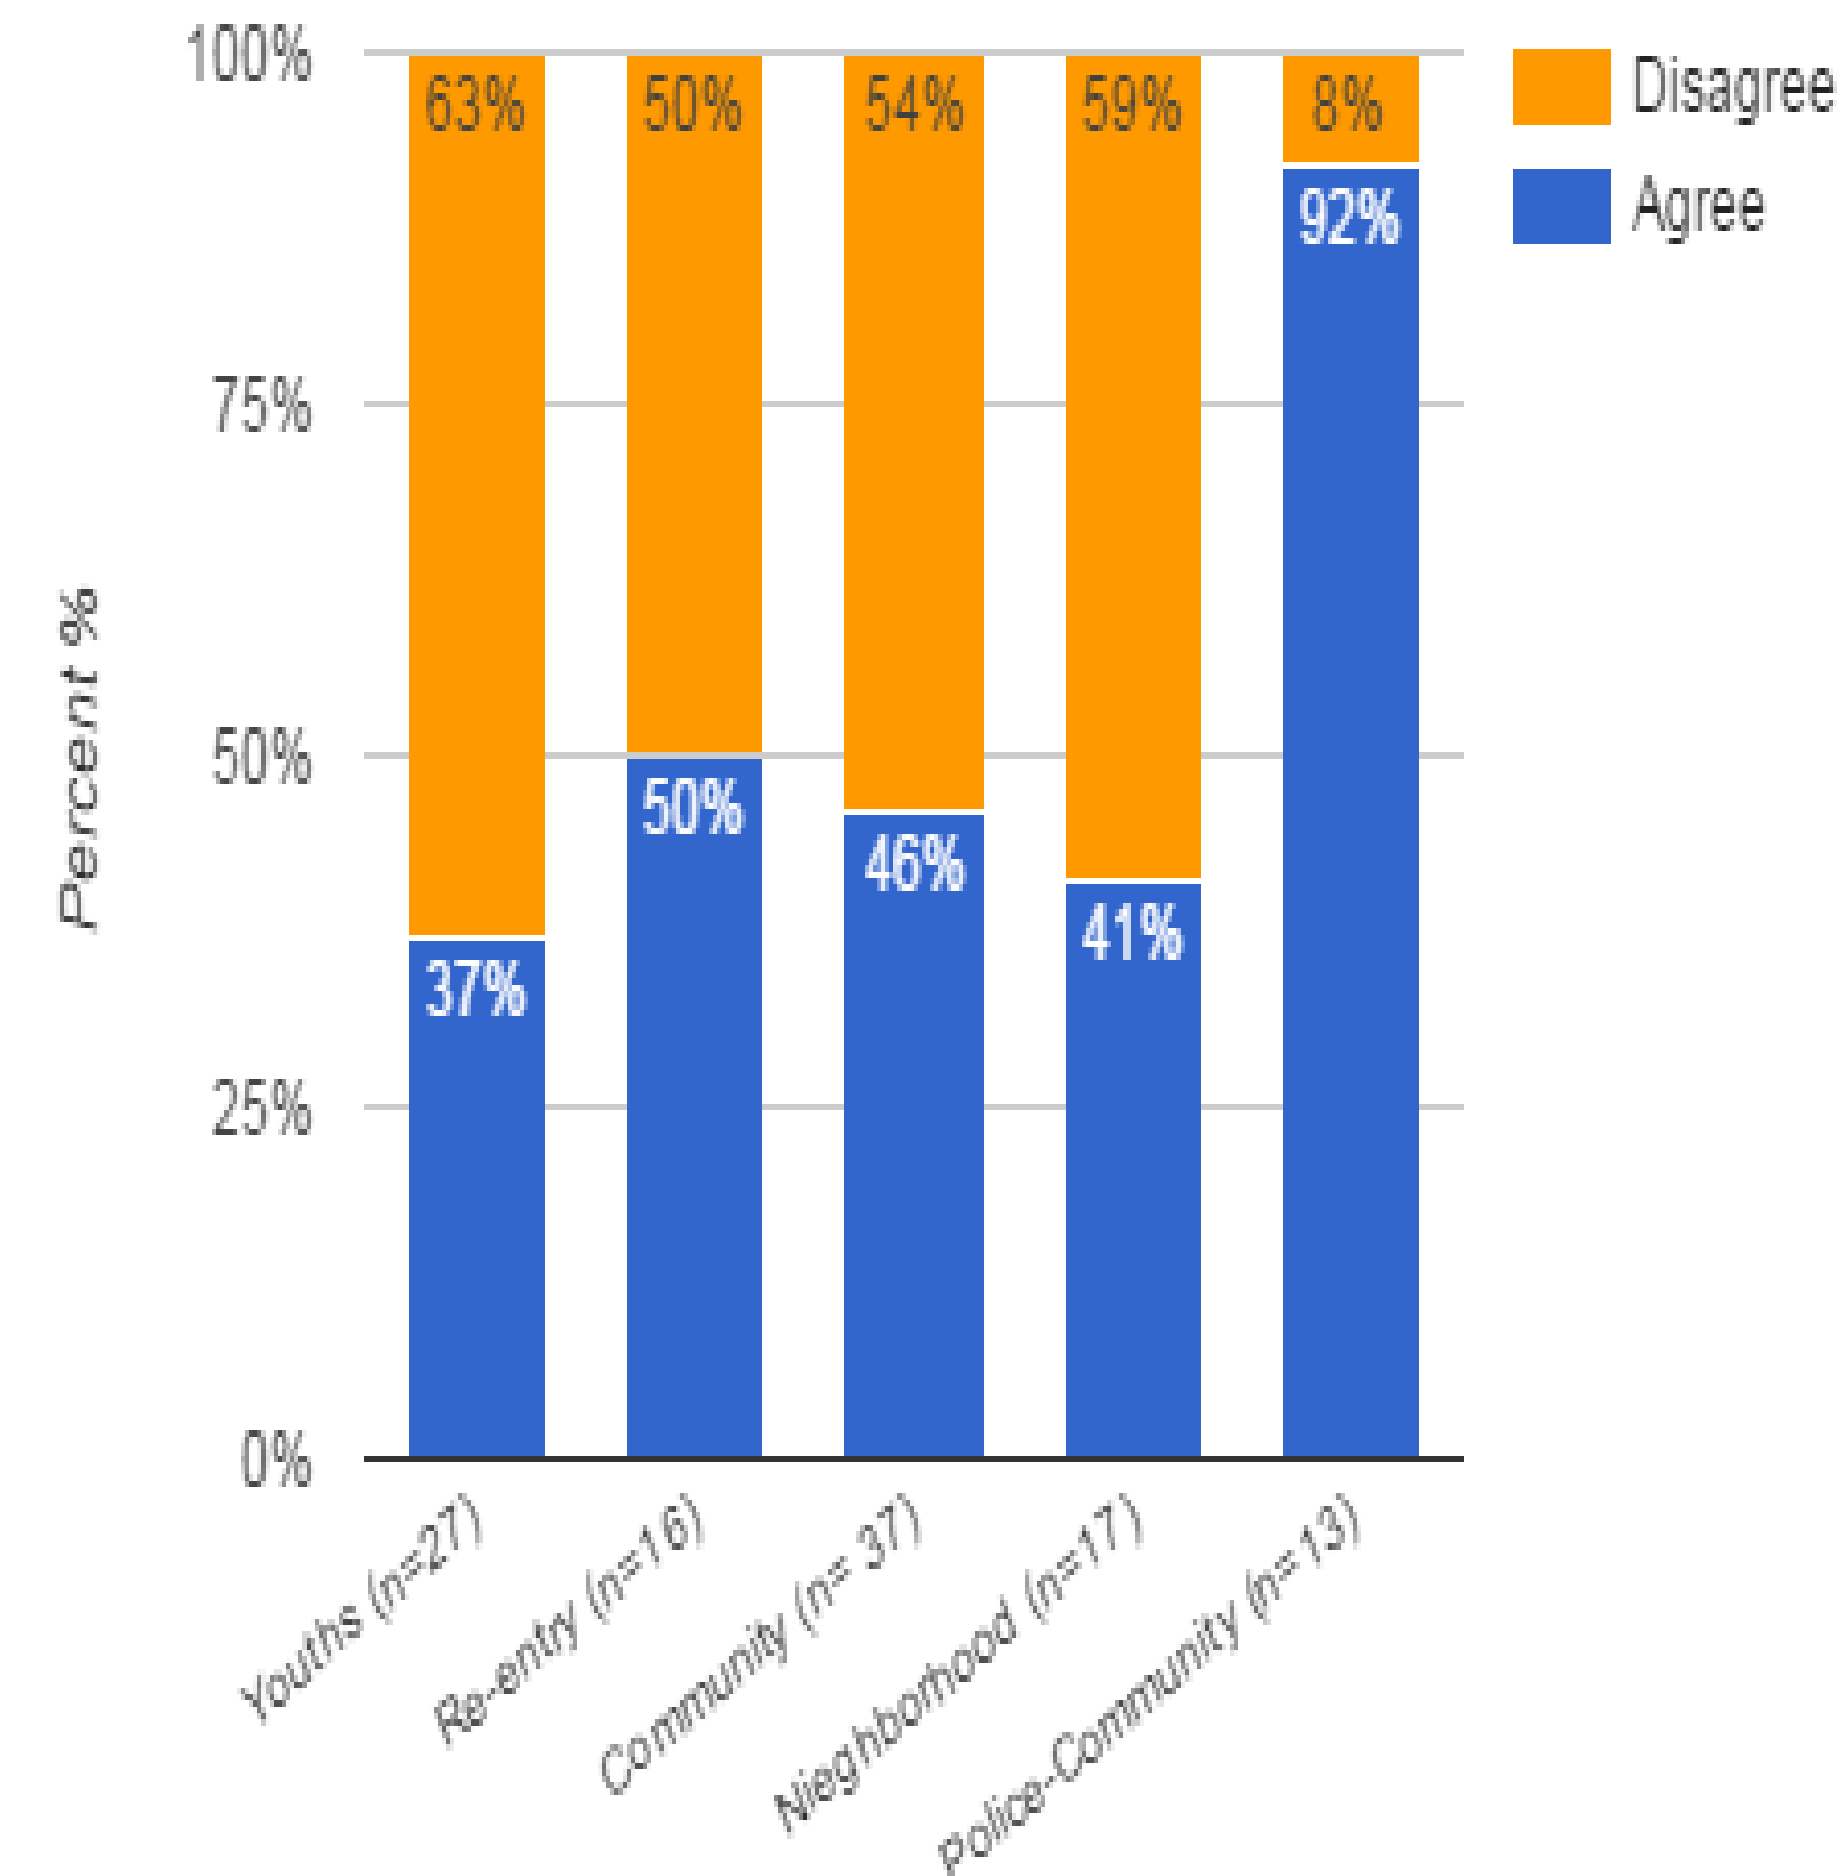

Fairness in the System

The Criminal Justice System generally treats people fairly? (n= 99)

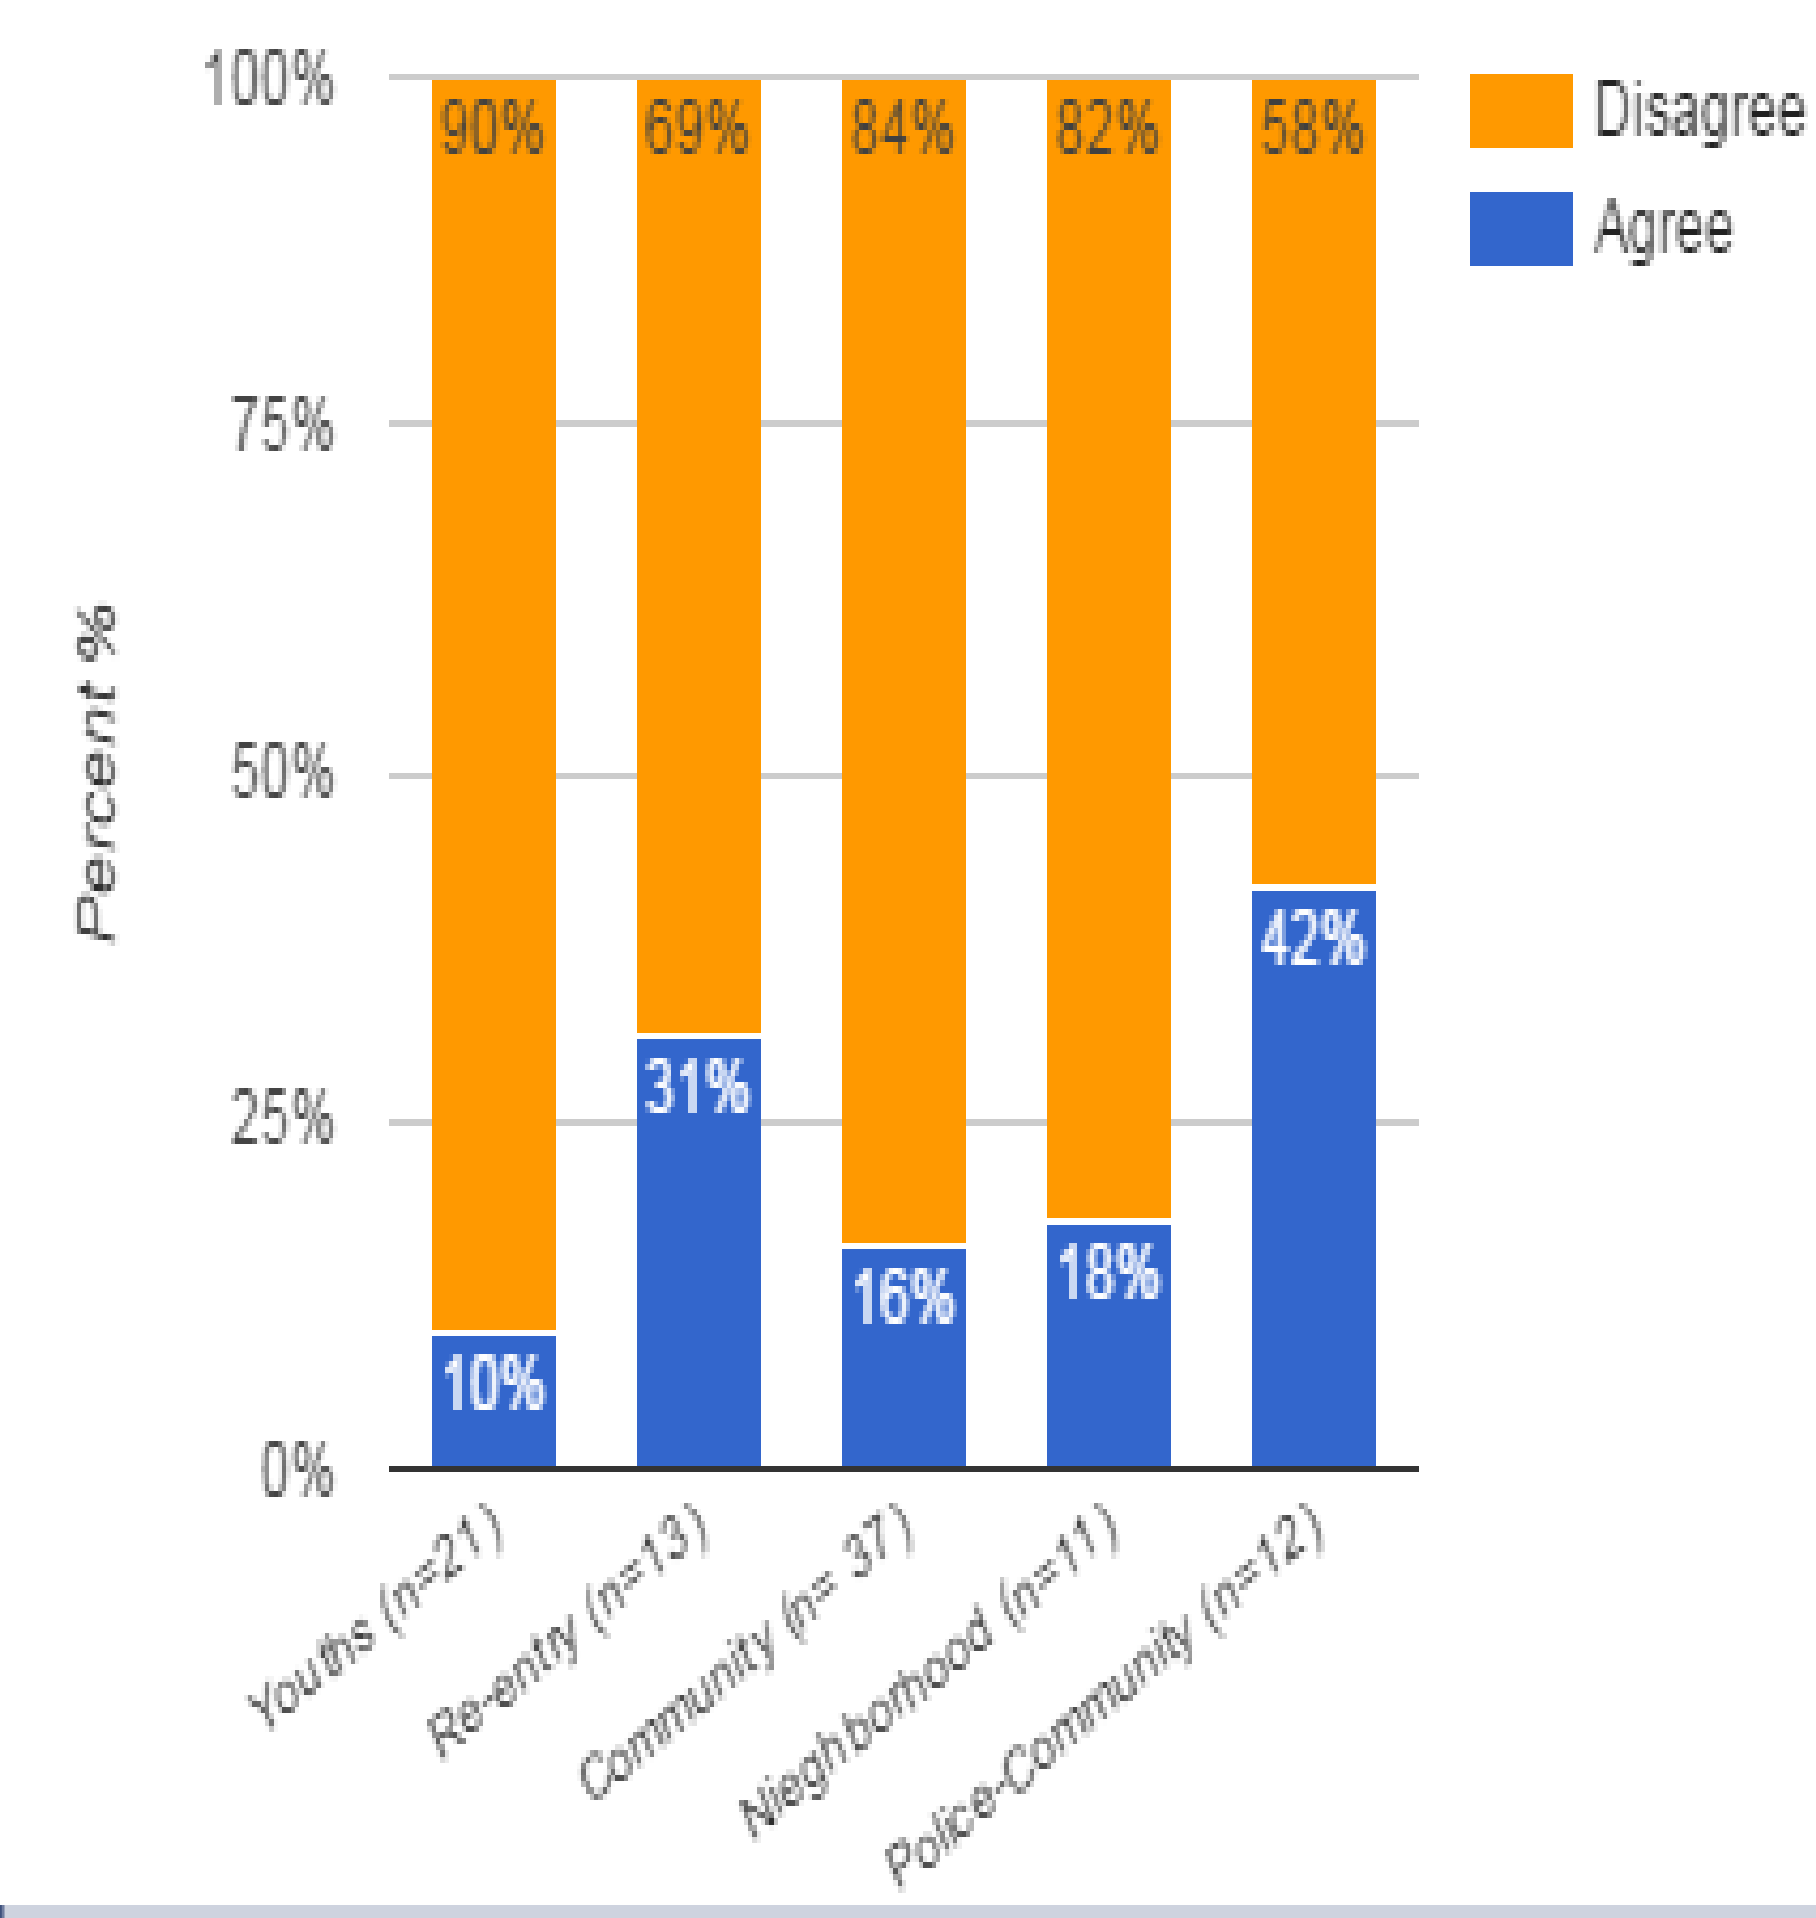

This chart lists views by individual participant surveys

The Police in my community are generally fair in the way they enforce the law?

This chart takes individual survey question results and breaks them down by groups

The Criminal Justice System generally treats people fairly?

This chart takes individual survey question results and breaks them down by groups

Methodology

Group Feedback Analysis:
Combines traditional survey and focus group discussion .

Step 1:
Survey questions

Step 2:
Display polled results

Step 3:
Guided group discussion

Factors in Perceptions

Need more positive interactions from police with the community. It is easy to mistreat a community you do not know.

Parole , police, court , probation, all work together and people with records are seen as a different team.

Youth

Re-entry

Feels like police listen to what you have to say but do not act.

We sometimes expect police to do things that aren't in their job description.

Neighborhood

Police-Citizens

Police should find common ground with residents, there are residents who care and understand where police are coming from.

Community Groups

Contact

Center For Public Safety Initiatives
Building 1, Room 2383
Department of Criminal Justice
College of Liberal Arts
www.rit.edu/cla/criminaljustice/cpsi