Yesterday, more than 150 students who are deaf and studying at Zhongzhou University's Special Education College were very energized. They heard from Prof. DeCaro, Director of PEN-International. He said that they will soon receive a video-conferencing instructional system and use it to communicate with students and teachers in foreign colleges for the deaf.

Yesterday afternoon, Zhongzhou University and PEN-International formally signed an agreement. After joining PEN-International, ZZU will install a video-phone instruction system at no charge to ZZU, receive teacher training and other services at no charge to ZZU, be provided with advanced educational technology in postsecondary education for deaf students, and learn ways to broaden employment of deaf people. After TUT, CCU, and BUU, ZZU is the fourth college in China to join PEN-International.
