Support for Deaf and Hard of Hearing Students in Japan and Related Issues

Changes in support available in Japan from 1970 to 2000

1970- Deaf students tended to study alone without any support from their universities. Deaf students borrowed notes that hearing classmates took during class and transcribed them into their own notebook themselves. # p.Nihon Tsukuba Univ. et al.

1990- Some universities began allocating budgets for support to deaf students. # p.Nihon Tsukuba Univ. et al. established support centers for deaf students. Faculty and staff began supporting mainly the training and employment of "Notetakers" at Universities. In Japan "Notetaking" consists of summarizing what is being said in real time so that deaf students can follow lectures, and is therefore different from the concept of "Notetaking" in the U.S.

2000- Quality of support services offered by some universities made rapid progress! One university began employing a JSL interpreter as a staff member of the university and several other universities have recently followed suit. Furthermore, a voice recognition system for academic communication was developed and this system is already in experimental use at TCT and Gumtets Univ.

「本学は、聴覚障害者及び視覚障害者のための我が国唯一の高等教育機関として、平成18年に聴覚・視覚障害学生の大学教育に関する「相談・支援センター」を設置し、国内外の聴覚・視覚障害学生の受け入れや入学後のサポートについての相談を受け付けてまいりました。また平成16年には15の大学・機関の先生方の協力を得て、日本聴覚障害学生高等教育支援ネットワーク (PEPNet-Japan) を立ち上げ、一般の大学で聴覚障害学生への支援を行うためのノウハウ蓄積・情報交換を進めてまいりました。

本調査は、そうした活動の一環として、全国の大学・短期大学に於ける聴覚障害学生へのサポート体制構築の調査を行うために実施したものであります。
