

Sidney M. Barefoot, M.S., is an Associate Professor at the National Technical Institute for the Deaf at Rochester Institute of Technology. Since joining the RIT faculty in 1974, he has served primarily as a teacher of courses related to personal-social, academic and employment communication. He has been a chairperson of an interdisciplinary communication department and has developed both classroom and computer-based instruction. Currently teaching in the NTID Communication Studies and Services Department, he is a frequent presenter at faculty workshops on topics related to communication diversity.