NTID Mid-Course Feedback

Mid-Course Feedback (MCF) is a process initiated in response to students' desire to see that their opinions are valued by teachers and can impact what happens in their courses. This a short survey and should take no longer than 5 minutes to complete. Your instructor can use your responses to better understand how you are experiencing the course, and to make changes to how the course is delivered. They may discuss the findings with you during your class time.
