DANCE PARTY GUIDELINES

The Rochester Institute of Technology (RIT) seeks to support a vibrant, diverse, and spirited campus life experience.

A fundamental principle in the hosting of events is the maintenance of appropriate safety and security for all students and visitors to the campus involved with recognized campus events. One aspect of a dynamic campus life is the hosting of activities which by definition below are considered dance parties. Recognized student organizations at RIT are permitted to host dance party events on campus when the specific conditions outlined in this document are met. RIT has established these guidelines to ensure that reasonable safety and security measures are employed by all organizations and departments involved in the development, review, and support of these events.

These guidelines are reflective of the collective expectations for safety and security from a number of RIT offices, and serve to support and protect the host student organizations as well as those attending events. As such, RIT prefers that student organizations remain on campus for their dance parties, following the guidelines and practices below. Should organizations choose to seek off-campus locations for events of this nature, RIT reminds students and organizations that RIT’s Code of Conduct includes an Off Campus Behavior policy. Should RIT be made aware of violations of the Code of Conduct at off-campus dance parties, the host organization(s) and any specified individuals would be subject to report and review through RIT’s Office of Student Conduct.
